ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

Franchises For Rural Trolley Systems Should Not Be Granted For Long Periods.

[Orange Judd Farmer.]

Electric railways are not allowed to carry freight in certain States, owing either to State laws or to the charters of steam railroads that give the latter a monopoly of freight transportation. Wherever such laws exist they should be repealed. The trolley system should be open to freight as well as to passengers. We consider this matter of the most extraordinary importance, and cannot too strongly urge that whatever legislation is necessary to accomplish this result be obtained without delay. Articles published last season on the use of the electric railway for transporting farm produce, in western New York, in Ohio and in Canada, have given a great impetus to the trolley freight idea. Electric railways are being promoted all over the country. It will not be long before communication by trolley from the country to the city will be well-nigh universal in the more thickly settled sections. All questions pertaining to street railway franchises are therefore becoming quite as important to the country as to the city.

Officials in counties and in rural townships should grant franchises for electric railways only under suitable restrictions to protect the public interests. The duration of the franchise should be limited to a certain number of years, and the charges for freight and passenger service should be specified in the franchises as granted. Care in the granting of franchises for rural electric railways will avoid many of the costly mistakes made by cities years ago in giving away forever most valuable franchises for the use of their streets for railways, gas conduits, etc. It is inevitable that the great majority of the local trolley lines now in operation and in prospect will in time be consolidated into a few large systems, just as is being done with the steam railways. While the convenience of electric transportation is desired in rural districts, as well as in the cities, it is of grave consequence that all contracts, franchises, etc., for these new railways be granted under conditions that will conserve the public welfare in the future. No franchise should be granted for longer than twenty years, at the end of which time the township or county should be entitled to acquire the railway upon payment of a fairly appraised value of tracks and equipment.

FORMALINE.

New Antiseptic Accomplishes Remarkable Cure in a Case of Blood Poisoning.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—At the last meeting of the New York Obstetrical Society, Dr. Charles C. Barrows, of this city, submitted a report of an experiment with formaline, a drug known as the strongest of antiseptics, which he had made in Bellevue Hospital on a patient who, after giving birth to a child, had a temperature of 108 degrees and a pulse of 160.

When the patient was admitted she was suffering from sepsis, or blood poisoning. A blood culture was taken and it was found to be full of septicaemia, known to the medical profession as streptococci. After the injection of formaline the patient recovered rapidly.

The belief at the start was that the patient was dying and most radical measures were used to save her life. Five hundred cubic centimeters of formaline were injected into the left arm. The effect seemed, according to Dr. Barrows' report, to be almost instantaneous. A second injection was given her and her pulse and temperature fell to normal. The patient is recovering now.

Experiments are being made on animals and further important results are expected. The injection of formaline into the veins had never been heard of until Dr. Barrows' paper.

Raw Apples Promote Health.

[Farmers' Review.]

Ripe, uncooked apples are among the most valuable of our fruits. It has been said that any man who can and will eat two good-sized apples in the course of twenty-four hours, will never have gout, and if this destroyer of comfort has already fastened its fangs in his system, apples will vanquish even the most persistent form of this legacy of luxurious living. Raw apples are much to be preferred for health reasons to those that are cooked. Heat makes chemical changes and destroys or vitalizes an acid that seems to act directly on the lime, salts and earthy matter created in the system by gouty and rheumatic conditions.

Mrs. Louisa Morton, of the county, is reported no better.

Some of the people who think they were born to command do not discover their mistake until they get married.—Puck.

Old black walnut stumps are being dug up all over the West for use in the manufacture of gun stocks, the stumps in some cases bringing more money than the tree which grew upon them did fifty years ago.

An agricultural and live stock writer says the close of the year 1902 saw more hogs in sight than ever before, and a more active demand for their product at higher prices than the hog raisers have known for many years. Coupled with this condition of things is an almost entire absence of epidemic diseases among the herds.

The old time viol was the first instrument of its kind and furnished the plan for the modern violin, which, however, is 700 years old. It is said that Charles II. introduced it into England. One of the finest makers of violins was Stradivarius of Cremona, who existed in the early part of the eighteenth century. Violins made by him are worth thousands of dollars now and are highly esteemed by collectors and performers.

In some villages in Japan robbers are tried and convicted by ballot. Whenever a robbery is committed the ruler of the hamlet summons the entire male population and requests them to write on a slip of paper the name of the person they suspect as having committed the crime. The one receiving the largest number of ballots is declared duly "elected" and is accordingly hanged. This system, like all others, has its peculiar advantages. It insures the punishment of somebody for every robbery committed, whereas under the system in vogue in most civilized countries in nine cases out of ten no punishment is inflicted on anybody for the crime. Of course they may not "elect" the guilty person, but dispose of some other character equally bad.

Enquirer: "G. B. Wall, of Richmond, Va., and John C. C. Mayo, of Paintsville, Ky., who has been the chief factor in the acquiring of 300,000 acres of coal and timber lands in Eastern Kentucky, met at the Grand Friday and finished the arrangements for the rights of way for the extension of the C. and O. railroad through the properties of the Northern Coal and Coking Company. "We expect the ninety miles of extension of the C. and O. from White House to the Breaks of Sandy to be completed by this spring a year. There will be some track laying next fall. When the new line is in operation there will be railway transportation to Ashland and thence to Cincinnati, from one of the greatest coal regions on earth."

The return of Morrison's version of "Faust" will be hailed with pleasure by those who have witnessed the craft and subtlety of Satan in the dramatized form of Goethe's exquisite story of "Faust" and the hapless "Marguerite." The scenery and equipments of this season's new "Faust" are the most costly and elaborate ever given to the mounting of this play in its long career. The company has been chosen with the utmost care and in its entirety the production this season surpasses in every way all previous presentations. The vocal music from the invisible choir, Satan's impassioned appeal to the archangel and the exquisite light effects which culminate in a display of the heavenly gates, the archangel and his host, makes this one of the most effective and gorgeous scenes ever displayed. Morrison's "Faust" will be here on Thursday, January 22nd. Seats go on sale Wednesday morning at Nelson's.

FOR THE FARMER.

Government Entomologists Discover Insect Disease Germ That Will Kill Grasshoppers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—There will be no more dreaded plagues of grasshoppers or locusts. The Department of Agriculture has discovered a plague to kill the plague—the germ of an extremely contagious insect disease that can wipe out the vastest swarms of locusts or of grasshoppers in a single night.

The discovery is the result of years of patient investigation on the part of the department entomologists, and the practical value of the discovery has been demonstrated by government agents and private individuals acting as such all over the world. The discovery is held to be of immense value to farmers in those sections of the country, notably the Middle West and Southwest, where the locust and grasshopper plagues have for years been one of the most dreadful possibilities against which the farmer has to contend.

VERBAL ALIASES.

WORDS THAT GET TOO FAMILIAR TO SUIT SOME TASTES.

The Scientific Fad of Clothing Old Things in New Terms—Some Words the Meanings of Which Are Commonly Misunderstood.

When the report was recently circulated that a prominent public man had lost his life through accidentally inhaling a quantity of carbon dioxide, the man in the street began at once inquiring what carbon dioxide was.

As a matter of fact, carbon dioxide is merely another name for carbonic acid gas, one of the products of combustion and a constituent of atmospheric air.

Carbonic acid gas is known by several different names, as, for instance, carbon dioxide, carbonic oxide and carbonic anhydride.

Consumption as a name for a terrible and widespread disease is known and understood by practically every man, woman and child in England. But the medical fraternity, ever on the lookout for something new in the way of professional nomenclature, elected some years back to call it phthisis, and then just when that unspelling word began to be known and recognized they evolved yet another—tuberculosis.

And as with consumption so with most other complaints. A quarter of a century ago even eminent physicians were content to speak of smallpox, of typhoid fever, of lockjaw. Today they are called variola, enteric and tetanus respectively.

A doctor when giving evidence before an ignorant east end jury the other day said that the immediate cause of death was "a violent and prolonged fit of combined epistaxis and stomatorrhagia." It would, one would think, have been far easier for him to have spoken of a bleeding at the nose and mouth, and he would at all events have had the satisfaction of making himself understood.

Most people now living can remember the time when bacteria were known generically as animalcules—a not very strictly scientific definition, perhaps, but one easily understandable, and conveying, moreover, a distinct idea to any one of ordinary education and intelligence.

For that very reason, doubtless, the title in question was voted out of date and old fashioned and the word "bacteria" was substituted. This means, literally, "little sticks," certainly a most novel definition, but one that scarcely strikes the average lay mind as being either lucid or suitable. Nevertheless, it was accepted, and at last became familiar to the man in the street.

That of course could not be tolerated. Imagine a bacteriologist using a word which conveyed any meaning to anybody outside his own charmed circle! The idea is both degrading and preposterous; so he set to work forthwith and invented a whole host of terrific verbal aliases.

He called them for example, schizomycetes, neuromuskelzellen, megacoci and polymorphonuclear leucocytes, as well as half a hundred other things; while for the chemical substances incidental to the science he invented such delightful terms as "tetrahydroparamethoxyquinoline" and "tetramethyldiamido-triphenyl-carbinol-oxalate."

The craze, too, is getting commoner among other than scientists. Take the word "reeking," for instance, and ask your friends what they understand by it. "Reeking?" one will say. "Why, reeking means dripping with moisture, soaked with wet." You will derive some amusement from his surprise when you tell him that reeking means "smoking, steaming." A chimney can reek. When a horse reeks with moisture, it is because its flanks smoke and steam.

The change from the real meaning to that given it in popular, present day phraseology can easily be traced. Anything very wet will reek in frosty weather; so the wetness has been assumed to be the real characteristic of reek.

Then there is "lurid," which nine people out of ten use in an entirely wrong sense. Ask a man what color lurid is, and he may answer correctly, but the chances are that he will say, "Red flame, orange or bright yellow." Of course, lurid means smoky or dull color. London fog is lurid. Thick, suffocating smoke is lurid.

Lurid and livid are almost synonymous. Lurid flames are flames choked and hidden by smoke. A lurid sunset is not a brilliant one, but one dull and gray and cheerless.

Of course, the use of verbal aliases is not an absolutely new departure. It is only that we of this generation in our wild strivings after novelty have so enormously increased and multiplied them. The taste of our grandfathers and great-grandfathers lay rather in the direction of using over and over again two or three long and uncommon words.

Thus honorificabilitudinitatibus, as a synonym of fame, eminence, occurs and recurs with almost depressing regularity in the plays of old pre-Elizabethan dramatists and is even used by Shakespeare on occasion.

It was partly in ridicule of the silly custom of using this and other similar idiotic verbal doubles, which had survived in part even until his time, that Rabelais makes Pantagruel speak of "morramborizeverezengirizequoquemorgasachevezinemasaffretiding my poor eye" and ask angrily of Mr. Mauhound whether it was not enough to have "morrocastebezasterestegrigeloseopapondrillated us all in our upper members, but you must also apply such morderegriplatabrofreluchamburdrecaquelurintimpaniments to our shipbones?"—London Tit-Bits.

TWILIGHT IN IRELAND.

It Is Different From That Seen In Any Other Country.

The interior of a typical Irish cabin is a sorry sight. The floor is of stone, uncovered except for a few rag mats. The furniture is of the poorest, and sometimes it is homemade; tables improvised from boxes, chairs from barrels, and the beds more like stalls for cattle, with their straw mattresses and bundle of rags for clothing. A slow, dull fire of peat gives a cheerless warmth to the room. What few dishes there are belonging to the family are arranged on the mantelpiece. Strips of bacon, dried cod and herbs hang from the ceiling.

After a frugal meal Pat will take his evening promenade. It is between supper time and going to bed that the Irish most enjoy themselves. An Irish twilight is different from any other; indeed, it is without a rival. It seems as if there the sun were loath to set, casting its rays over the Emerald Isle many hours after it had disappeared elsewhere. In that delicious moment, just before it finds its final resting place for the night, it is most enchanting. Over everything is an unspeakable spell of peace and quiet, and a warm glow casts into shadow unsightly objects and surrounds them with a mystic halo of golden light. It radiates into the hearts of Ireland's humblest inhabitants, and they sally forth, rich and poor alike, mingling in a throng of living, moving humanity.

London Theaters of Long Ago.

A writer in London Truth says that in the early part of the eighteenth century the London theaters opened at 6 o'clock, and as it was therefore difficult for playgoers to arrive punctually and obtain seats many of them sent footmen or hired men from the streets to secure places for them. These sat in the seats until those who had sent them came, and the custom prevailed until 1766, when the system now in force was adopted. "A footman used to be sent early to take places and keep them by the simple but effectual plan of sitting on them till his masters and mistresses arrived. Such a practice would now be considered an intolerable nuisance, but people in those days were much less particular, and appear to have thought nothing of sitting for an act or two cheek by jowl with a flunky or, worse, with a vagabond picked up in the street." An allusion to the custom occurs in Fielding's "Miss Lucy in Town," act 1, scene 2, and Pepys in his "Diary" occasionally mentions having hired a boy in the streets to occupy a seat for him.

Japan Once Joined to China.

Japan consists of a group of "festoon islands," forming a long curve, with its concavity toward the mainland, and many of their peculiarities are due to their upheaval by subterranean forces, of which they are still one of the most active seats. They were undoubtedly connected with China and with the land to the north of this at no very remote period, geologically speaking, and therefore, like Great Britain and Ireland, are scientifically classified as "recent continental islands." The proofs of this are twofold—first, they are connected with Asia by a submarine bank less than a hundred fathoms beneath the surface, and this is believed to be, as in all such cases, a submerged land tract; second, the animals of Japan are closely similar to those of China, the only plausible explanation of this being that formerly there was a land connection.

The Royal "We."

There has been a tendency of late years on the part of royal personages to discontinue the use of we and substitute I. Before the reign of Richard I. "I" (Ego) was always used, Richard being the first sovereign in Europe to use the royal "we" (Nos). What gave rise to the change is a moot point. Richard I. was the first king to seal with a seal of arms which bore two lions, and it has been suggested that the lions were typical of the royal "we" and occasioned its use.—London Chronicle.

Then She Smiled.

She—Sir: I—

And the clouds lifted.

WHAT IS A "COLD?"

The Word That Covers a Multitude of Ills Expounded.

Professor Lohnberg, in the Vienna Clinical Review, on an essay on cold in the head, says that the "ordinary cold is no individual complaint, but only a collective name for a large number of different complaints."

He continues, "The attempt to discover a universal remedy against a cold is just as absurd as to search for a generally efficacious remedy for headache." The particular complaint of which the cold is the symptom can only be ascertained by "careful examination of the nasal cavities and neighboring parts." Hence sufferers should be circumspect in the use of remedies.

The professor says only that which is true, but of which the mass of mankind is ignorant. Colds are of innumerable varieties, but the most common one is that which is persistently misunderstood. It is attributed to anything but the right cause, which is a microbe.

All its symptoms are those of a highly infectious fever, and the public instead of blaming the microbe of infection and striving to kill it will persist in denouncing drafts, wet feet, low temperature, etc.

They exclude air, the enemy of the microbe, from their rooms; they supply a temperature in which it can multiply, and, having become thoroughly inoculated by breathing the germ laden atmosphere, they find that a cold current of air causes them to shiver. The shivering of the ordinary mind decides the question of causation.

It is significant of every fever that it begins with shivering, and a cold is no exception.

Cold, wet feet, drafts, etc., are at most only accessories. By putting a greater strain on the animal economy they decrease its resistance to microbial infection.

THE KADIAK BEAR.

His Winter Habits Much Like Those of Bears the World Over.

The Kadiak bear finds no trouble in getting all the food he wants during the berry season and during the run of the various kinds of salmon, which lasts from June until October. At this period he fattens up, and upon this fat he lives through his long winter sleep. When he wakes in the spring, he is very weak and hardly able to move, so his first aim is to recover the use of his legs. This he does by taking short walks when the weather is pleasant, returning to his den every night. This light exercise lasts for a week or so, when he sets out to seek upon the beach kelp, which acts as a purge. He now lives upon roots, principally of the salmon berry bush, and later nibbles the young grass. These carry him along until the salmon arrive, when he becomes exclusively a fish eater until the berries are ripe. I have been told by the natives that just before he goes into his den he eats berries only, and his stomach is now so filled with fat that he really eats but little.

The time when the bears go into winter quarters depends upon the severity of the season. Generally speaking, it is in early November, shortly after the cold weather has set in. Most bears sleep uninterruptedly until spring, but occasionally they are found wandering about in midwinter. My natives seemed to think that only those bears which have found uncomfortable quarters are restless and that they leave their dens at this time of the year only for the purpose of finding better ones.—From "Big Game of Western Alaska," by James H. Kidder, in Outing.

Exonerated.

Three-year-old Jack had pulled a large bunch of nasturtiums in his grandmother's yard, though strictly forbidden to touch the flowers. A court martial was held, with grandma as judge advocate.

"Jack," she said, "who pulled grandma's flowers?"

With a sad countenance the beautiful little fellow replied, "Kathleen" (his elder sister).

Then the grandfather, a rather stern old gentleman and a great stickler for truth, spoke up.

"Jack, be a man and say, 'I did it!'"

With a beaming expression of relief Jack cried out, "Oh, yes, grandpa did it!"—Judge.

He Went.

She—What are you thinking of, Mr. Boreley?

He—I was thinking it was time to go home.

She—Now, here is the difference between men and women: I arrived at that conclusion long ago, and you have only just worked it out.

A committee will call on you this week, if you have not already been solicited, and ask your aid to make the tobacco and corn fair a success. Be liberal in your contributions. Should you fail to receive this call, send name and amount to Mr. H. C. Curran, Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Trade.

TRUCKLING TO THE TRUSTS.

One of the strongest articles recently published on this subject is from the pen of Byron W. Holt. If one wishes to get an insight into the truckling of the Republicans to the trusts, let him read what Mr. Holt says:

As a rule the present heads of the government departments and bureaus recognize the trusts as the real power behind the Republican throne, and understand what is required of them if they wish to hold onto their jobs. In short, they serve the trusts. Some serve in their official capacity only, others curry favor and promotions by serving with all their faculties at all times. These latter are the wise ones, as is evident from the kind of men appointed to commissions, bureaus, etc.

Treasurer Ellis H. Roberts was undoubtedly right when he told the convention of the American Association for the advancement of science that:

With all other things equal, large additions to the currency carry up the prices of commodities measured by it.

He then said that "notable advances have taken place in the prices of articles of necessity during the past five years." His estimate of the increased cost of living as 25 to 30 per cent. is undoubtedly too low, however.

Treasurer Roberts would have us infer that these increased prices and higher cost of living is due entirely to the additions to the currency of the country. The increase in gold alone in this country he said had averaged $107,783,639 a year since January 1, 1898. He said nothing about the marvelous growth of trusts, since the passage of the Dingley act in 1897, and the probability, amounting almost to a certainty, that most of the advance in prices is due to the monopoly of our markets by these protected trusts. In fact, most of the notable advances can be traced to some trust formed since 1897, or to natural causes, such as poor crops abroad or poor crops at home. Some farm products are selling for less now than in 1897 in spite of the great scarcity abroad. Thus Mr. Roberts mentions wheat as being lower than in 1897.

That the trusts are the real culprits in putting up prices is evident from a consideration of foreign prices. France, England and Germany have increased their gold holdings since 1898 almost as much as has this country. Yet the cost of living in those countries has increased only about one-third as much as here and, in fact, has probably declined considerably during the last two years, in spite of poor crops there, and while it was rapidly rising in our trust-ridden country. Sauerbeck's "index" tables show that prices in England declined 5 per cent. in 1901, and were only 16 per cent. higher than in 1896. Prices there probably declined further in 1902, although most meat and other products imported from the United States were higher.

It is up to Treasurer Roberts to tell us why, with greatly increased currency, both here and abroad, prices have not risen almost as much there as here. "With all other things equal," he said. Will he please tell us what other things, that might affect prices, were as unequal in this period as the growth of trusts here and abroad?

No, he will not. He prefers to play the sycophant and to apologize for trusts. He says:

"Great corporations cannot throttle competition; they arouse it on a larger scale. The giants among them promise moderate prices with a view to steady profit."

Here is trust truckling for you. He well knows that great trusts do throttle competition and charge immoderate prices. He knows what the beef and coal trust did in 1902, for he must have read the reports of the Washington (city) committees that investigated these trusts. He must know that the railroad and coal mining companies in control of the anthracite mines have stopped competition almost absolutely, and are charging prices limited only by the competition from other products and by the fear of the wrath of an outraged people. He is, perhaps, no worse than most others above and below him in the government employ. All recognize and serve their real masters, the trusts that contributed the funds, that carried the elections, that put the Republican administration in power. They will ever remain faithful to their trusts and will always be ready, at command, to fool the people by throwing statistical dust into their eyes or by injecting official sophistry into their heads, whenever the trusts think there is serious danger of trouble to their monopolies.

Col. Frank Coles, of Ashland, is the latest Republican mentioned in connection with the race for Governor.

Dress Stuffs! A BARGAIN....

$2½ to $5 buys a dress pattern that a fortnight ago would have cost $5 to $10. Not to wool Dress Goods are reductions confined—silks have also been sheared of all profit. Never a better time to buy a dress, waist or skirt. Perhaps some neighbor has availed of this sale—ask her opinion of our January bargains—we know her answer will bring you here.

Furs-One Half

The offer can be made in a dozen words. Every fur piece in the store at a reduction of one-half from the marked figures. Owing to the warm fall we marked furs early in December at the lowest prices ever known in the store's history—and from these lowest of low prices we again clip one-half.

D. HUNT & SON

Is only a bargain when it is a worth-while article at less than usual price. Last winter's coats would not be cheap to smart dressers at any price.

Every Wrap

In our stock is correctly fashioned and was made for the winter of 1902-3. We didn't carry one coat over from last year. We emphasize this point because it is difficult for anyone to grasp the extraordinary values we are giving in the coat department. You think old-fashioned garments are only possible at such prices. Don't waste time over that fallacy when a glance will instantly confirm every detail of our statement.

COLE NOT ANNOUNCED.

Thomas D. Slattery Pushing His Canvass for Commonwealth's Attorney.

[Greenup Democrat.]

We have seen in several papers that Hon. W. T. Cole had announced himself a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney in this district. Mr. Cole has not finally decided upon the matter, and in case he decides to run Democrat readers will be first to know it.

Thomas D. Slattery of Maysville was in Greenup Monday looking after his political interests. Mr. Slattery will probably announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney in this district. He is especially well qualified for the position, being well known and liked all over the district, especially in the lower counties. In case Greenup County has no candidate for the nomination, Mr. Slattery will very likely receive the instructions.

Representative Kehoe exhibited to a number of members Friday, says a special, an old deed drawn up on buckskin, which he had received from one of his constituents, Mrs. E. H. D. Webb, of Webbville. It bears the date of May 1, 1762, and the writing is perfectly legible. It transfers certain property in the "borough of Lancaster, province of Pennsylvania," to one of the ancestors of Mrs. Webb, who thought the deed might still be in force.

The suits of State Revenue Agent Albritton against the Ford and Woodford estates of Bourbon County are for back taxes on $4,000,000. Albritton's attorneys are Harmon Stitt, of Paris, and Judge Winfield Buckler, of Carlisle. "If these suits prevail," says the Kentuckian, "and Mr. Albritton says there is no doubt about that, the county will derive enough revenue from the taxes to pay for the new court house without issuing bonds, and have something left towards putting the turnpikes in good repair."

FREE DELIVERY SERVICE.

Boxes to be Delivered in a Few Days to Parties Who Have Ordered.

People living along the various free delivery routes to be established in this county Feb. 2nd should make the necessary preparations if they wish to receive the benefit of the service.

Parties who have contracted for mail boxes should get ready to receive them as they will probably be delivered in the next few days. It is necessary to have the posts erected on which the box is to rest. Here are the requirements of the department as to these posts:

The post should be four by six inches square and should be set in ground so as to extend four feet, six inches above ground. A seat or rest two by six inches should be cut in the top and a quarter inch hole bored through the center of the tongue or back part of post extending above the rest. Another piece two inches thick, by four wide, by eighteen inches long should be nailed or spiked to the side of the post, with top on a level with the rest, as an additional support.

If these arrangements are made the box can be put up in a few minutes.

Judge Parker as Democratic Candidate.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

"The strongest candidate the Democrats can put out in 1904 is Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York," said Senator Fred T. Dubois, of Idaho, last night. "The three most available men are Judge Parker, Senator Gorman and Mr. Olney, and of these I believe that Judge Parker would be the strongest candidate. His record as a Democrat and as a man cannot be impugned, and he is personally acceptable to every section of the country, East, West and South alike."

Born, at Carlisle, to the wife of Judge A. B. Tilton, a son.

Slop for sale on and after January 15th at Limestone distillery.

Miss Nannie Gill united with the Christian Church Sunday by letter.

Miss Mamie Gaines entertained the Washington Cooking Club Thursday night.

Mary Sweeney, of Flemingsburg, died Friday at the Home of the Good Shepherd, Newport.

Attorney M. A. Ruggles has been ill for several days at the home of relatives near Lewisburg.

Captain Oscar F. Barrett is one of the incorporators of the new bank to be started at Bellevue.

The half-decomposed body of an unknown man was found Saturday under the Mann warehouse at Carlisle.

Captain W. A. Peebles, a native of Maysville, died last week at the asylum near Nashville, aged eighty years.

Elder Lloyd Darsie has resigned as pastor of the Paris Christian Church, to accept the pastorate of a Chicago church.

The friends of Mrs. S. P. Baird learn with regret that she may be permanently crippled as a result of falling at Carlisle and dislocating her hip.

Rev. R. E. Moss is on the program for an address at a big foreign mission rally to be held at the Central Christian Church, Cincinnati, to-morrow, morning and afternoon. He will speak on "The Holy Spirit in Missions." President Jenkins, of Kentucky University, and Rev. Hugh McLellan, of Richmond, are also among the speakers.

AUGUSTA'S TOBACCO FAIR.

Maysville Sent Down a Large Delegation. Mason County Growers Captured Most of Premiums.

The attendance from this city and county at the Augusta tobacco fair Saturday was much larger than had been expected. Maysville sent a delegation of eighty, including the new band, and the approaching tobacco and corn fair in this city was given a "boost" at all points. The party reached Augusta at 11:30, and most of them spent the day there.

Our Augusta neighbors had not planned well for their fair, and as a result the management was not what it should have been; but it was their first fair which may account for their failure to have all details completed before hand.

It was 3 o'clock in the afternoon before the judges completed the task of classifying the samples and awarding the premiums. There were about 100 samples entered, and most of them were fine. A list of the premiums was not obtained, but most of them were awarded to Mason County growers, Dover precinct getting six ribbons.

COMING 100 STRONG.

Business Men's Club of Cincinnati Will Send Big Delegation to Maysville's Tobacco Fair.

The Hon. Jno. L. Shuff, of Cincinnati, has been appointed the Chairman of a committee to make arrangements for the Business Men's Club, of that city, to attend Maysville's tobacco fair Feb. 21st. They will bring the superb band which was here last year. Mr. Shuff says that they will come in larger numbers than before.

Let every one get ready for this event. Farmers, prepare your exhibits and let us show what Mason County can do.

HERE'S A POINTER!

A Proposition to Farmers That Would Tickle the "Original Rib."

We are pleased to announce that notwithstanding the recent advance in wire goods, our prices on AMERICAN FIELD FENCE will remain the same for a FEW DAYS. A purchase of five car-loads late in the Fall enables us to continue the old quotations for a short time only. PRICES ARE GOING HIGHER and we would not be surprised at any time to receive advices of a further advance. Our present figures are much lower than we can promise to name a month hence and are subject to withdrawal without notice. Farmers would do well to anticipate future needs and buy while we are in position to make this offer.

THE FRANK OWENS HARDWARE COMPANY

CINCINNATI TOBACCO MARKET.

Weekly Review of the Trade—Demand Strong and Active, With Marked Improvement.

	Week.	Year.	Week.	Year.
	1903.	1902.	1903.	1902.
Offerings of new hds.	981	387	2,509	655
Offerings of old hds.	518	577	812	841

Total hds. 1,499 964 3,321 1,496
Rejections 218 183 561 292

Actual sales 1,281 791 2,769 1,204
Receipts 855 585 2,435 1,203

The 981 hds. new tobacco averaged $7.06 per 100 pounds, as against $6.84 for the 1,558 hds. last week and $6.94 for the 387 hds. in the corresponding week last year.

There was a big falling off in the receipts during the week, caused by the river being partially closed to navigation. The receipts were only 855 hds. as against 1,580 hds. previous week. Offerings were also considerably curtailed, the total being 1,499 hds. as against 1,822 hds. last week.

The market was strong and active throughout the week, with the greatest improvement and uniformity in old tobaccos of good to fine quality. The better grades of new were also appreciably higher, but the unusually heavy proportion of common and low grades under $5.25 gave a low general average. Several large independent manufacturers, among them Pieper of St. Louis and the Scottin-Dillon Company of Detroit were on the breaks, and their heavy purchases were large factors in sustaining prices.

Another thing that helped materially to uphold prices during the week is the fact that the offerings were generally in prime order and good condition, and this lent encouragement to bidders.

The present status of the market is a perfectly healthy one and should give satisfaction to shippers, as the speculative demand is not much in evidence, and that for rehandling is very limited. Practically everything is being taken for manufacturers' wants, which is really the best feature of the sales. The buying is not being dominated by the big corporations either, as the independent manufacturers are very prominent factors in the sales.

The Alleged Shortage of Cars.

(Hillsboro Gazette.)

There is a great deal of bluff about the shortage of coal cars. The claim is made by coal operators that they cannot get a sufficient number of cars to fill their orders, and the result is a scarcity of fuel in many places, with a big advance in prices, and people are suffering for the want of fuel. At the same time there are large numbers of coal cars lying empty on the sidetracks of railroads. On the sidetracks and in the yards of the two roads here may be seen a number of cars and some of them were hauled in here empty. It looks like a deliberate attempt to create a shortage of cars for the purpose of creating a coal famine.

Robert P. Jacobs, a prominent lawyer and banker of Danville, died suddenly Saturday. He was a member of the Constitutional convention of 1890.
